

Department of Radiation Oncology

- Dr. Rahat Hadi, Associate Professor

A graduate from GSVM Medical College, Kanpur, he obtained post-graduate degree in MD (Radiation Oncology) from King George Medical University, Lucknow in 2005. He joined as Senior Resident at BHMRC, New Delhi in 2005 and the premier institute AIIMS, New Delhi in 2006. After completing Senior Residency, he joined as assistant professor at JIPMER, Puducherry in 2009 and consultant at IRCSCH, Nellore, Andhra Pradesh in 2010 before joining as assistant professor in this institute in 2011.

Invited as guest speaker and presented papers in various national and international conferences, participated and chaired the session in various national conferences. He published articles in various national and international journals. He organised CME's, workshop, conferences at national level and various camps for educating and disseminating knowledge about cancer prevention, detection and management. He is presently member of various scientific committees and organisation. His areas of interest in practicing all the recent advancement in the field of chemotherapy and radiotherapy with emphasis on research related to it.